THE DUNDONALD BANQUET

Major-General Lord Dundonald and staff were entertained by the mayor and corporation of Edmonton at a banquet in the Windsor hotel on Saturday evening last. The distinguished services rendered by General Dundonald in Africa and the fact that he had for a time been in command of the Strathcona Horse, to which force Edmonton and surroundings contributed many members, gave a special and personal interest to his visit, aside from the fact that he at present holds an important position of Major-General commanding the Canadian militia and regular forces in connection with which important position he is now on a tour of inspection, and also, if the word may be permitted, of prospection. Besides General Dundonald the party included Col. Evans, who commanded the C. M. R. in South Africa, and is now in command of the western military district, with headquarters at Winnipeg, and also Lt.-Col. Denny and Captain Newton, of Ottawa.

Every inch of the dining space in the large dining room of the Windsor was occupied with tables and guests as the party sat down, shortly before nine o'clock. Mayor Short presided with Major Becher, C.M.G., who was second in command of the Strathcona horse, and is in charge of the Mounted Police post at Edmonton, in the vice-chair. There was a large attendance of South African veterans. The spread was ample, of the high standard which has been set by the Windsor, and entirely worthy of the occasion.

The first toast, proposed by the chairman, was "The King," which was duly honored.

The chairman then in a very neat and appropriate speech, proposed "Our Guest."

In responding Lord Dundonald said that he had been deeply touched by the expressions of good will which had met him all over Canada. He was glad of this opportunity of seeing so many of his old friends of South Africa. He recalled the arrival of the Strathcona at his camp. He was very busy when he heard they were coming, so he sent an officer to meet them. When the officer returned he asked, "What did they say?" The officer hesitated a little but finally explained that they had said "They didn't want too many orders." Pursuing his enquiry he said, "What did they say?" The reply was that they wanted to be told, "There's your meat, go and fetch it."

Speaking of the purpose of his tour, the General said that in this great, new, rich country there was an assurance of a wonderful creation of wealth. When wealth has been created it must be protected. Words were not a sufficient protection, we required rifles. The West, with the population of the Transvaal, needed and could afford, a stronger defensive force than the regiment at Winnipeg and a few scattered squadrons of cavalry. He considered that in the West there should be 20,000 mounted men. We had the horses, we had the men. It was merely a matter of getting them together.

This was a matter of some expense, but expense as a protective measure is a necessity. Wealth which depends on force for its security, must expect to pay in reasonable measure for that security. It was proposed to establish a permanent corps whose name would commemorate the loyalty and liberality of Lord Strathcona, and he had suggested that there should be a hall in connection, on whose walls should be inscribed the names of those men who had served in South Africa. Speaking of improvement in armament he said that the immense power of the modern rifle had immeasurably increased the defensive power of small nations, but it also rendered early preparation more than ever necessary. The South African war had shown that a position once seized by an enemy would cost many lives to take. The improved arms made mobility of vital importance. This was given by cavalry. The mounted men of Canada would compare with any other country. If war should ever come, which God forbid, Canada would have the reputation won by her sons in South Africa as her greatest encouragement. Their laurels won there were all the brighter because they had not been

TOO BAD! TOO BAD!

Under the heading "Another Three Years," the Winnipeg Telegram puts up the following wall:
"Work on the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific will not be begun for another year at least, so says President Hays announces. The subsidy for another three years. Autonomy for the territories will not be granted until some unknown date in the dim future—if the Liberal government remains in power at Ottawa, so Sir Wilfrid Laurier declares. In the meantime the Territories are deprived of the power of providing railway facilities for themselves wherever they are required."

The climax of the Telegram's grief is reached in the concluding sentence which deplores the inability of the Territories to mortgage themselves as Manitoba has done to provide railway facilities. Evidently the Telegram is a strong believer in the theory that the people, and especially the people of the Territories are fools. The credit of the Dominion is being pledged to the extent of from fifteen to twenty millions of dollars to give the Territories adequate railway facilities, on conditions much more favorable to both the people who will use the roads, and to those whose credit is used to build them, than were secured by the province of Manitoba in its much vaunted bargain with the Canadian Northern. Manitoba on the subject of railway aid and development is in the same position as the fabled fox, which having lost its tail, tried to persuade all the other foxes that tails were an unsightly encumbrance. By the way is the screeching anxiety of the Telegram that the Territories should mortgage themselves for railway aid an indication that the railway company which is said to be interested in the Telegram, would like to get a graft on the new and juicy Territories such as it secured on the already heavily mortgaged province of Manitoba. It may not be out of place to remind the Telegram that notwithstanding the sacrifices of the provinces that ten cent rate on wheat has not yet become effective. What was the bargain that Manitoba made with the railway company anyway? Who controls the rates and who stands the losses?

THE H. B. CO.

The Bulletin has received from the commissioner of the Hudson's Bay Company a map of the Dominion, upon which is shown the trading posts of the Hudson's Bay Company. The map gives a very clear idea of the immense operations of the great company which does business in all parts of Canada. Edmonton, of course, one of the most important points on its great system of posts. Its importance may be judged from the number of posts which are supplied from Edmonton.

On the waters of the Saskatchewan, the only post supplied from Edmonton is Lake St. Ann.

On the waters of the Athabasca see: Trout Lake, Athabasca Landing, Lac la Biche, Lesser Slave Lake, Wabasca, Fort McMurray, Portage la Pêche, Fort McKay, Fort Chipewyan and Fort Fond du Lac. The two latter are on Lake Athabasca.

On the Peace River are: Sturgeon Lake, Grand Prairie, Hudson's Hope, Fort St. John, Dunvegan, Peace River Landing, Whitefish Lake, Vermilion and Little Red River.

On Great Slave River and lake are Fort Smith and Fort Resolution.

On the Liard and Nelson are Forts Liard and Nelson.

On the Mackenzie are Forts, Providence, Simpson, Wrigley, Norman, Good Hope and Macpherson. This latter post is within the Arctic circle.

What promises to be an excellent and fast hockey match will be played in Thistle rink, Edmonton, this evening, between two local teams, captained by Helliwell and Sibbald. While this game is not an exhibition one, it promises to be fast and furious, and the regular admission fee will be charged. The match will commence at eight o'clock sharp.

from merely in defending their own hearths and homes, but in maintaining the integrity of the motherland, the only true land of freedom, of the fullest freedom, without license.

The general remarks were received with every mark of appreciation throughout and the heartiest applause at the close.

H. Stuebury sang "The Boys of the Old Brigade," and Kipling's "Fuzzy Wuzzy" as an encore.

The vice chairman proposed "The Army and Navy," to which Major Constantine, commanding G. Division, N. W. M. Police at Fort Saskatchewan, and C. de W. Macdonald responded in short and appropriate speeches.

Mr. Savard sang "Soldiers of the Queen," and as an encore, "The Marseillaise."

The "House of Parliament" was proposed by the chairman, and responded to by Frank Oliver, M. P.

The vice chairman proposed the "Colonial Forces," which was responded to by Col. Evans, and Messrs. W. A. Griesbach, of Edmonton, and F. G. Jamieson, of Strathcona, ex-members of the 1st C.M.R. In the course of his remarks Col. Evans said that fifty per cent. of the fighting men who went from Canada to South Africa came from west of Lake Superior, and that one-third of the rifle associations organized in Canada were also west of the lakes.

The chairman then called on Mr. Kinnaird, town clerk, to read a complimentary address, which was as follows:

To the Right Honorable Major General the Earl of Dundonald, C. V. O., C. B., Commander of the Canadian Forces:

My Lord—

The Mayor and corporation of the town of Edmonton desires to express to you its satisfaction at welcoming you to the town, and at having the opportunity of explaining to Your Lordship the manifold and great advantages which the town enjoys, being as it is geographically nearly the centre point of the valley of the Saskatchewan River, which includes by far the greatest continuous area of agricultural land found within Canada, and is at the same time the point in that valley nearest to the valley of the Peace River, which drains an area of arable land in the west second only to that drained by the Saskatchewan itself. Your Lordship will, we feel sure, realize the importance of the situation of the town in these regards, and will not be blind to the possibilities of urban development which will follow with absolute certainty the opening up and colonization of these great tracts of agricultural land, an opening up and colonization which has been going on slowly during the past years and will be given a fresh and strong impetus by the building of the two new transcontinental railroads now projected. On these Edmonton is the only common point west of Winnipeg, and connected as it is with the existing railway system, will have railway facilities such as will be enjoyed at no other point. That Edmonton cannot but become the great central city of an immense country, we here are completely convinced, and we think Your Lordship's mind cannot but be impressed with the facts upon which our conviction is based, and the reasoning leading up to and supporting it.

Your Lordship will also have observed the tactical and strategical position of the town with a soldier's eye. When the the chief military post in the Northwest, the manifold advantages of Edmonton will be present to Your Lordship's mind, and we will, we trust, give her as commanding a position in the military as she has in the industrial world.

In conclusion we beg again to express our pleasure at this opportunity of meeting Your Lordship, and trust that you will take back with you to the East pleasant recollections of Western Canada generally, and of the town of Edmonton and the district of Alberta in particular.

We take pleasure, Sir, in presenting you with a memento of our visit—a memento not, and not intended to be, characteristic of the country, but rather one peculiar to it.

Dated this 28th day of November, 1903.

Signed on behalf of the Mayor and corporation of the town of Edmonton.

At the conclusion of the address Messrs. S. A. Richardson and P. F. Sims presented a magnificent memento, ex head, mounted, to Lord Dundonald, as a reminder of his visit to Edmonton.

In the course of his reply to the address, Lord Dundonald said that he realized the future importance of Edmonton. He had no doubt that it would be the town of the future. He noted with pleasure that among other advantages claimed it was the gate-way to the Valley of the Peace. But he also noted that one hundred members of the militia he said that in regard to the conditions which prevent many sincerely patriotic men from joining the volunteers in time of peace, three-fifths of the first line of militia would be enlisted for peace and war, two-fifths for war only.

This line would be made up to 100,000 men. The second line would be subject to call only in case of war.

There would be company officers and means of rapid organization. It was expected that after organization and equipment had been provided patriotism would do the rest. No doubt Edmonton would be to the front with a militia force of full strength.

The proceedings were closed shortly after twelve o'clock by the singing of the national anthem.

Before the toasts were offered, the chairman read a letter of regret from Rev. D. G. McQueen, who had been invited but was unavoidably absent.

LORD DUNDONALD

ENTHUSIASTICALLY WELCOMED TO EDMONTON

The General is Highly Pleased With the Great Welcome Extended to Him—Delighted With Edmonton.

Edmonton citizens eagerly awaited an opportunity to do welcome to the Commander-in-Chief of the Canadian forces, Major General, the Earl of Dundonald, C.V.O., C.B. The opportunity has come and Edmonton responded magnificently. His reception was carried out amid great enthusiasm. Edmonton felt honored by the presence of such a distinguished soldier. He was royally received for his true and tried worth, his rank as far as the people of Edmonton were concerned, was a secondary occasion. His stately bearing and handsome appearance were much commented on and there was pride in the hearts of many to think that the commander of the Canadian militia was this scholarly, soldierly and cultured son of old Scotia.

A great concourse of people were at the Edmonton, Yukon and Pacific station on Saturday night to welcome the noted General. However, the committee were unable to make the necessary arrangements for having his private car, Alberta, brought over to Edmonton. In this way, only a small reception committee, consisting of Mayor Short and a couple of citizens met the General in Strathcona. At eight o'clock three carriages from Edmonton conveyed the distinguished visitor and party from their private car to the Windsor hotel, Edmonton, where a sumptuous banquet was partaken of.

On Sunday morning at 10.15 o'clock, according to previous arrangements, the local ex-Mounted Police, and the South African volunteers met at the fire hall. They formed in line under the command of Major Belcher, and marched to the Presbyterian church. The order of parade was as follows: A Mounted Policeman in advance was followed by the band, which played military airs. Lord Dundonald, Col. Evans and Captain Newton, followed the band, and next were a number of local ex-Mounted Police, and South African veterans, under the command of Major Belcher.

The spacious auditorium and galleries of the Presbyterian church were crowded to the doors and a large number of people who could not find standing room, were turned away. In the absence of the pastor Dr. McDonald, of Strathcona, took the service. The altar of the church was prettily decorated with flowers and house plants. The choir consisted of about twenty-five persons and was assisted by an orchestra. Special music was rendered. The sermon was suited to the occasion, and was closely followed.

After the service was over, the ex-policemen and ex-members, of the South African contingents, lined up in front of the church under command of Major Belcher, for inspection by Lord Dundonald. The General was introduced to each of the men by Major Belcher, and enquired where and in what regiments they had seen service. He kindly shook hands with a couple of veterans among the troops. After inspection had been completed, the General addressed the men briefly. He was greatly pleased to meet so many of his old South African comrades, and also many who had fought in previous wars. There was no body of men whom he respected more than the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police. This fine body of men had sent three hundred splendid men to South Africa, and were the N.W.M.P. a military organization, which they are not, he would advocate that on their colors be inscribed the names of all the principal engagements in South Africa. A Northwest Mounted Policeman is always a man of trust. If at any time any portion of the Canadian militia will consent to serve as regulars in time of war, he hoped that the Northwest Mounted Police, at least, would be among the number. After the General had again expressed his pleasure at being present to meet his old companions of the South African battlefields, the men were dismissed. A immense number of people witnessed the inspection.

After the inspection which followed the church service, the General and party drove to their private car. They returned to the Windsor hotel in the afternoon and were driven about the town and immediate vicinity. There were three carriages. In the first carriage were General Dundonald, Major Belcher, C.M.G., and Mayor Short. In the second carriage, Colonel Evans, Capt. Constable, and F. C. Jamieson, and in the third carriage, Captain Newton and W. A. Griesbach. Different prospective sites for a rifle range and a military depot were inspected. The General highly approved of them. The Mounted Police barracks was next inspected and in the afternoon the party were entertained to tea at Major Belcher's. The General expressed himself in complimentary terms of the town and Edmonton's future. He was highly gratified at the magnificent reception and kindness of the people. He took the military church parade as an object lesson as to the material here and an earnest of what we could do when the volunteer corps will be established here in the near future.

The General returned to his private car in the evening and left for the south this morning to continue his tour through the west.

A Novel Suggestion for Christmas.

We know that many of the good people about us are intending patronizing us for Xmas photos—many have already told us.

Just Suppose.

(and this is improbable, though possible) that the finishing of the new studio is further delayed, and we find that, by the time we are all settled and ready to take those photos for you, there would be insufficient time to turn the work out and DO IT PROPERLY, what are you going to do?

Let Us Solve the Problem.

We are getting a number of neat cards printed, on which appears a note—a promissory note in fact—by signing your name to which you agree to forward your photo as soon as time allows. Also there appears the usual Xmas greeting, and there's the point. You wish your friends the best of cheer at Christmas, don't you? The very novelty of the thing will make that friend smile, the resultant anticipation will make that smile hold, and the realization will cement it there. Every little helps, you know.

Follow this suggestion and you will be pleased, your friends will be delighted, and we shall be happy too, so everything will be lovely.

You can get the cards at the studio in good time. Await announcement of opening.

POPULAR LAKE

To the members of the Poplar Lake Literary and Debating Society:

At the first meeting of our society the full officers were elected for the coming month. A committee was appointed to purchase two lamps and some oil. The secretary was instructed to write the secretary of the school board for the use of the schoolhouse for holding our meetings. At a second meeting the committee reported having purchased two brass lamps for ten dollars, and four gallons of oil. The secretary read a reply from the secretary of the school board, stating that we could have the use of the school upon the condition of the furnishing of a ton of coal and the cleaning of the school once a month. At that meeting the members present were not in favor of accepting those terms, and so appointed a committee to interview the school board and see if better terms would not be granted. The society then adjourned till Dec. 2nd. At the request of one of the trustees, the secretary treasurer of the school board officially called a meeting of the board at the school on Monday, the 23rd inst., to discuss the matter. A delegation from the Literary Society waited at the school till about 10 p.m., but only one trustee came and so no meeting was held. Again the secretary treasurer called another meeting for Friday, but again only one trustee was present. It may be probable that the other trustees had good and ample reasons for their absence, but under the circumstances as president of the Literary Society, I take the authority to adjourn the meetings of the Literary and Debating society until the first Wednesday after the annual school meeting of Poplar Lake school district.

A list of reasons why the Literary Society should receive liberal treatment has been handed to the secretary treasurer, so that the board may understand our side of the case. Among other reasons are the following:

It is a properly organized society. Among its members are some of the most respectable people of the settlement. The debates are a means of education, not only to those taking part, but also to the audience.

Canada is a country having local self-government. A properly organized Literary and Debating Society is a training school in government for the future citizens, so it would be perfectly in order for the school board to generously assist it.

The society purchased two new lamps at a cost of ten dollars. Some of the members were in favor of the society raising funds to purchase an encyclopedia or other set of reference books for the library. Thus, the district is reaping a good deal more benefit from the society than what cost is incurred.

The society should not be asked to scrub the school every month. In the winter there is very little mud brought in, especially in the evening. The constitution of the society forbids the use of tobacco at meetings of the society.

The school board may have reasons equally as good, and if so the society will, I think, be found reasonable.

Yours respectfully,
F. R. F. McKITTRICK,
November 28th, 1903.
